

A solar storm spreads out into space.

The Sun is extremely bright. Therefore, during daytime, we can see neither the moon nor the stars. We can take images of a solar storm only if we cover the Sun. On these images, the Sun is as big as the white circle.

Flipbook by www.fingertip.ch

Images <http://sohowww.nascom.nasa.gov>

Solar Storm
Sept. 8, 2003

2003/09/07 21:30

